

Supaporn canda 2020: Impact of Treasury Single Account on sme loan service. Master of Art, Major Field: Applied Finance, Independent Study Advisor: Assistant Professor Nattawoot Koowattanatianchai, D.B.A. 100 pages.

This research studies the effect of a policy for commercial banks to consider business loans from a single account that submitted to the Revenue Department on the lending business. Data is collected by using questionnaires and use Binary logistic regression employed to analyze the factors affecting business loan decisions in the presence of the aforementioned policy.

Results showed that the understanding of single account for loan business from respondents is below average and most of respondents will loan from commercial banks due to low interest and the factor of revenue, factor of knowledge & understanding of single account and factor of access funding are positively correlated with decision making of loan business with financial institutes.

Student's signature

Independent Study Advisor's
signature